Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Monday 01 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly dry, bright and cold. Snow in the south tonight.

Today:
Mainly dry with some sunshine, clouding over in the southwest later with some rain or snow. A few snow showers in the north and eastern Borders. Cold.

Tonight:
Central and southern Scotland will be cloudy with sleet or snow, rain along coasts. Mainly dry in the north with a frost, locally severe in the northwest.

Tuesday:
Mostly cloudy and cold with rain or sleet, some snow on hills possibly heavy. Far north and Northern Isles brighter with occasional wintry showers.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Remaining cold and unsettled with further rain, sleet and snow at times. Chance of some heavy falls of snow on hills in the east.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.